Harry van Wijk

(The Netherlands)

Thursday 19 May 2022
1.00-1.50 pm

Harry van Wijk (1971) is a versatile musician with passion. He is working as concert organist, church musician and choir director.

He has played concerts in several countries in Europe and the USA. He likes characteristic concert programs, with the best music from the organ literature; but also film music with organ, synthesizer and percussion, or music with organ and narrator.

Harry studied at the conservatorium with Kees van Houten and Theo Jellema. He also followed lessons in Belgium with Joris Verdin and in Germany with Wolfgang Zerer. The last years of his study he specialized in the French and German music from 1850 – 1950. After the conservatorium he followed lessons and masterclasses with Ludger Lohman, Leo van Doeselaar and Arno Krijger, with music from J.S. Bach, F. Mendelssohn Bartholdy and 20. century music.

He won prizes with the International Organ competition in Nijmegen and with several competitions in Germany.

A CD is published that Harry has recorded in Philadelphia (United States) including 'Die Moldau' by B. Smetana. He plays this on a beautiful organ of the builder E. Skinner. These organs are specially designed for playing orchestral music.
